EUROPE EXPECTS PEACE MOVEMENT FROM ROOSEVELT

Kaiser Said to Be Ready to Support Overtures by President to Stop Struggle in Far East—British Also Willing.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—It is universally felt here that President Roosevelt has a unique opportunity to utilize the immediate influence conferred upon him by the American people to initiate a movement for the cessation of the far eastern war.

From Berlin comes a report that when the Kaiser heard of Roosevelt's election he exclaimed that it presented the first hope of mediation, and there is no doubt that the Kaiser, from not entirely disinterested motives, would second President Roosevelt in an effort to secure peace.

Russia has now been sufficiently weakened militarily for the Kaiser's ends, while his avowed friendliness towards her in adversity places him in a most favorable position for future developments.

The British government and people would also welcome the termination of the war, but the Japanese alliance and Russian-Anglo phobia tie their hands. France would readily assist. Therefore the situation demands only a strong initiative, as Russia could scarcely resist the pressure of the civilized world, especially as Japan. It is believed, would display a most reasonable, conciliatory spirit if approached.

HANDCAR ROBBERS RAID VILLAGE BANK

Eight Men Blow Safe and Escape From Citizens With $2000 in Cash.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—The Chicago police were notified today of the robbery of the bank at Rio, Ill., by eight men, who secured $2000 in cash and escaped.

The bank is situated on the Burlington railroad, about 10 miles north of Galesburg. After blowing open the bank with dynamite and securing the money the robbers boarded a handcar and rode rapidly away towards the south.

The sheriff pursued them to a point near Galesburg, where all trace of the men was lost.

SMOOT INVESTIGATION OFF
No Steps Are Being Taken to Gain Evidence Against Mormon Statesman.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A hitch has occurred in the Reed Smoot Mormon investigation, which was to have been resumed by the sub-committee of the committee on privileges and elections of the United States senate immediately after the election.

The members of the sub-committee were to meet in Chicago this week and proceed to Utah, but the trip has been declared off.

Senator Dubois of Idaho, who is engaged on the side of the prosecution reached Chicago Thursday night. He received a message from Senator Burrows of Michigan, chairman of the special committee, informing him that it was impossible to get the members together. It is believed, therefore, that the plans for gathering testimony among the Mormons before the meeting of Congress next month will be abandoned.

STUDENTS FIGHT OVER HYMNS
German and Italians Clash at Vienna as an Echo of Innsbruck.

VIENNA, Nov. 12.—Many heads were broken in a fierce conflict between German and Italian students at the university today, the fight arising from the recent routine at Innsbruck. The Germans took the aggressive.

They started singing the Wacht am Rhein with uncovered heads and demanded that all the other students remove their hats. The Italians, slaves and other non-Germans refused to do so, whereupon the Germans tore the hats off the heads of the non-Germans and trampled their hats and caps in the dust. The Italians then started a counter-demonstration on the university steps and sang the national hymn of Italy.

The Germans then attacked the Italians and drove them from their position. Slashes and bruises were freely used, and the heads were cracked. No arrests were made, as the fighting was confined to the university grounds.

BY PROXY
What the Baby Needed.

I suffered from nervousness and headache until one day about a year ago it suddenly occurred to me what a great office drinker I was and I thought maybe I might have something to do with my trouble, so I shifted to tea for awhile, it was not better; if anything, worse.

"At that time I had a baby four months old that we had to feed on the bottle, and an old lady friend told me to try Postum Food Coffee. Three months ago I commenced using Postum, leaving off the tea and coffee, and not only have my calicous and nervous troubles entirely disappeared, but since then I have been living plenty of nurse for my baby and have a large, healthy child now.

"I have no desire to drink anything but Postum and know it has benefited my children, and I hope all who have children will try Postum and find out for themselves what a really wonderful food drink it is." Name given by Postum Food Drink Co., Mich.

Both tea and coffee contain quantities of a poisonous drug called caffeine that directly affects the heart, kidneys, stomach and nerves. Postum is made from cereals only, scientifically blended to get as coffee flavor. Ten days' trial of Postum in place of tea or coffee will show health secret worth more than a gold mine. There's a reason. Get the book, "The Road to Wellville," each package.

OH, LADIES, LADIES!

Miss Margaret Kiekham, who presided over the Old Maids' Convention in East St. Louis in October, has just been married—Other members acted as her bridesmaids, and now there is a grand rush among the survivors for the president's chair.

O Women, lovely Women,
Though ardent in your praise,
We cannot for an instant
Get onto half your ways!
Your thoughts we cannot fathom;
Your moods our minds amaze.

Behold, you vow with fervor
That single you'll remain
Forever and forever,
And strive to make it plain
That no male human being
A hold on you shall gain.

And then, behold you, straightway
You utter all your vows,
And, from a somber maiden,
We find, to our amazement,
Sometimes, that you are married
Inside of thirty days!

NINE INJURED BY EXPLOSION IN FIRE

Six Firemen Hurt and Knoxville Streets Covered With Debris—Loss $250,000.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 12.—A fire accompanied by an explosion of dynamite or powder occurred today on Gay street, the principal business street of the city, and caused a loss of $250,000. Nine persons, including six firemen, were injured.

The most serious are Firemen J. B. Hawkins, legs broken, and El Loeber, badly cut about head and seriously bruised. A number of other persons sustained cuts from flying glass, but none is seriously hurt. The fire originated from an unknown cause in the Woodruff Hardware Co.'s seven-story building, which was reduced to ashes. The recently completed five-story building occupied by the Cable Piano Co. was wrecked by the explosion and the six-story Arnold, Henderson & Co. building, a house was damaged by fire and water.

As a result of the explosion almost all window glass and many showcases in the nearby stores within a radius of two blocks were completely shattered. Two streets were completely showered with fragments.

Knabenshue said today that if the weather is as good tomorrow as it has been today, the Knabenshue performance is assured. The problem of providing gas for the ship at the race track has been solved. The gas will be supplied by the St. Louis Gas Co. and the Knabenshue performance is assured.

CHICAGO LABOR MEN ARE DEFIANT

Federation Is Expelled From National Body, but Officers Refuse to Waive Point.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Formal notice that the Chicago Federation of Labor has been expelled from the American Federation of Labor, was given today to Secretary E. N. Nockels by telegraph. The telegram was signed by President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. The telegram is:

"Your central body failed to comply with executive council's directions as decided by Boston convention and contained in my letter of Sept. 28. Time limit, Nov. 1, having expired, your charter status is hereby rescinded. The executive council has further decided that the Chicago Federation of Labor is expelled from membership in the national body. Officers of the local federation said this afternoon that they had no intention of expelling either of the two unions.

BANK SHORTAGE

MAY BE $48,000

Several loans of bank funds say that his acts were prompted simply by the same liberality, taking no thought of consequences, which actuated him in his personal relations.

Having no children, he and his wife have lived modestly and comfortably in an old-fashioned frame house four blocks up the hill from the river. His salary has been large, he says, and he declares that this home is all that he has.

As the transactions have extended over two years, the bank is protected by the bonds given for each of those years. Each bond was for $20,000 and the protection for the bank is therefore $40,000. As different bonds were on the two bonds, the burden of the expiation made by Baird takes cognizance of Missagel's well-known character.

FEAR ATTEMPT TO CORNER WOOL

Market Is Barren, Says Trade Paper, Scramble on for Next Year's Crop.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Will there be an attempt to corner wool? This is the question being asked by the American Wool and Cotton Reporter, the official organ of the trade, the condition of things in the wool market borders as closely on the actual famine as has been known for many years.

Foreign markets were never so bare of stock as it is asserted by that paper. It is not surprising, says that paper, "that next year's wool are being contracted for. This is true not only of the American and the Irish clip, but in some quarters there is an actual scramble for wool. What worse for wool than the present strained situation will be it is impossible to predict, but developments with respect to wool will be watched anxiously."

WIFE CHANGED MIND QUICKLY

Called Policemen to Arrest Her Husband, and Then Joined in Resisting Them.

The propensity of the married woman to make a lightning change from accuser to defender of her husband, said to exist by students of feminine character, manifested itself in the case of Mrs. Frank Rockeman of 281 Lexington avenue.

Instead of waiting until her husband had been fined and then pleading with the judge to let him go, she helped her husband to resist the police. She was arrested and taken to the police station.

CAN TRANSIT CO., CHANGING NAME, IGNORE CLAIMS?

ways Co. is not morally or legally obligated for the claims against the St. Louis Transit Co., of which he is still the president.

He said the Transit company owed the United Railways syndicate $7,000,000, which it was unable to pay, and it took the alternative of selling out to the syndicate or going into bankruptcy.

James Campbell, broker and financial representative of Brown Bros. of New York, made this statement:

"The Transit company has sold its assets to the Brown Bros. syndicate and nothing is left with which to satisfy its claims. There is no way that I can see whereby a claimant against the Transit company can hope to secure a settlement. In other words, the Transit company is 'broke' and unable to meet its obligations."

Lawyers Question
Legality of Act.

Whether the Transit company has a legal right to thus divest itself of its obligations or even to dispose of its stock to the United Railways Co. and thereby evade the claims, is a serious question among lawyers who have had long experience with damage suits.

Said a St. Louis attorney today: "The general principle is clear that a corporation can no more than an individual surrender its property and anything of value is property—except subject to its liabilities. The title has been assigned again and again."

By no form of law can a corporation transfer its property without providing for its obligations. I am not familiar with the details of the Transit company lease, nor with the terms of its surrender, but am inclined to think the announcement was intended as a leverage for forcing favorable settlements.

In financial circles it is urged that as a matter of fact the United Railways Co. does not own the St. Louis Transit Co., but rather of the firm of Brown Bros. & Co., which secured a majority of Transit common stock recently.

History of Great Transit Combine.

The St. Louis Transit or United Railways Co. has had a stormy career since its organization five years ago.

Until 1899 the St. Louis street railway lines were under independent ownership. The Seullin system, of which John Seullin, now retired, was president, controlled the city with the Union Depot system, which embraced six divisions, three in North and three in South St. Louis. These were the Tower Grove, Cherokee, Bellefontaine and Eighteenth street lines.

The Hamilton syndicate, owned by Chicago capitalists, but at one time the property of the Union Depot system, included the present Easton avenue, Broadway, Spring, Lee and Cass avenue lines.

The Lindell system embraced the Delmar, Page, Spaulding, Compton Heights, Chouteau and Park avenue divisions. The fourth included the Missouri Railroad Co. of the city, Market street and Laclede avenue lines. The fifth division was the Fourth street, then a cable line. The Suburban company, which has been independent since its organization, constituted the sixth system.

First, at consolidation came from the management of the Lindell Railroad Co., represented by Judge Henry B. Priest, present, eastern counsel of the St. Louis Transit Co. It was proposed to consolidate all of the lines, but the first combine effected was that of the various branches partially controlled by the Lindell company.

Next came the Missouri Railroad Co. and then the Seullin system. The Hamilton lines were the fourth to enter the combine, but the Suburban rejected the overtures of the United Railways promoters. The United Railways corporation was organized in the spring of 1898, and soon thereafter obtained control of its first valuable franchise, that of the Central Traction Co.

In connection with the passage of this franchise, for which the sum of $250,000 was paid to the municipal assembly, Robert N. Snyder was indicted, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary. The verdict was reversed by the supreme court.

Franchise Had
Birth in Bribes.
Snyder sold the franchise to the United Railways Co. promoters for $1,250,000. Of the $8 million of track authorized in this franchise, but three miles have ever been laid.

In order to make the consolidation legal and answer to the United Railways Co. promoters the passage of the famous street railway consolidation bill at the last session of the legislature. Evidence developed by Circuit Attorney Joseph W. Folk a year ago showed that the sum of $200,000 in bribes was distributed among Missouri lawmakers for the enactment of this legislation. But once this statute was passed, the United Railways promoters had no trouble in securing the franchise. They had bought up the city street railway lines, except the Suburban, for $20,000 cash and at once they began to capitalize and bond them at $50,000,000. Then the United Railways Co. with an additional $40,000,000 capital, most of it on paper, and the stock admittedly watered, came into existence and relieved the United Railways Co. of control.

Miss Lulu Sattig.

SUIT WILL FOLLOW THEIR HONEYMOON

Breach of Promise Case Not Allowed to Interfere With Belleville Wedding Plans.

In spite of the fact that a breach of promise suit, brought by another young woman, is pending against C. A. Pfeiffer of East St. Louis, wedding bells are to ring Monday for his marriage to Miss Lulu Sattig of Belleville.

The other young woman is Miss Ida May Wood of Millstadt. She alleges, in her suit, which is pending in the East St. Louis City Court, that Mr. Pfeiffer asked her several times to become his wife before his engagement to Miss Sattig was announced, and declares that she has letters which sustain her statements.

It is intended that these letters shall be read in the trial of the case against Mr. Pfeiffer, and Miss Wood depends upon them to win the suit for her.

It was because Miss Wood had heard rumors of the intention of Mr. Pfeiffer to marry Miss Sattig that she filed the suit several months ago, asking $35,000 damages. It was denied at that time by Mr. Pfeiffer and Miss Sattig that they intended to be married.

Whatever may have been their intention then, it is their purpose now to be married Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the parochial residence of St. Luke's Church, at Belleville, by Rev. Father James Gough. Miss Rose Pfeiffer is to be bridesmaid, Arthur Sattig is to be groomsmen and Hazel Schubert of St. Louis is to be flower girl.

The ceremony is to be followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Root Hayes, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, at their home on South Spring street. The couple are to be housed at the Grosvenor, East St. Louis.

Miss Wood is said to be a pretty girl, and as determined as she is pretty. She is at present away from her home on a visit.

Miss Wood, in her petition, alleged that Mr. Pfeiffer at O'Fallon, May 1, 1900, promised to marry her, and that she had been repeatedly promised the same, but that shortly after that date he promised to marry Miss Sattig.

He declares that Dec. 1, 1901, he definitely promised that they should be married on the following Christmas day, and that at other times he made the same promise.

VANDERBILT FOR GERMAN EMBASSY

New York Sun Says Millionaire Will Be Made First Assistant of Legation.

IS FAVORITE WITH KAISER

With Mrs. Vanderbilt. He Has Been Shown Many Unusual Honors at Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Sun today says: "One result of Tuesday's election will be the appointment by the President of Cornelius Vanderbilt to be first secretary of the American embassy at Berlin."

Vanderbilt rendered important services to the Republican party in the campaign. "Mr. Vanderbilt and his wife, who was Miss Grace Wilson, are favorites with the German emperor and empress. The Kaiser entertained them on his yacht when they were last abroad.

"As first secretary to the American embassy at Berlin Mr. Vanderbilt will doubtless prove highly acceptable to the Kaiser, who entertained him and Mrs. Vanderbilt in a style usually accorded only to the most distinguished of the European nobility. This was while the Vanderbilts were making a tour of Europe in the summer of 1903 in their steam yacht, the Kaiser. When the emperor's brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, visited the United States, Mrs. Vanderbilt was the only American from whom he accepted a formal invitation to dine.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and her sister, Lady Michael Herbert, some years before, had been entertained by the emperor, and on that occasion she had been introduced to Prince Henry.

Prince Henry visited them nearly every day. The emperor went to luncheon on the North Star. When they went to the old city of Marienburg the emperor wrote to Prof. Delbrück asking that special attention be given to Mr. Vanderbilt and that the artist and historical collection in the ancient castle be shown to him. MacKenzie, commanding at Danzig, was instructed to entertain Mr. Vanderbilt there. A guard of honor from one of the emperor's own regiments received him at the Marienburg castle."

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS FROM TODAY IN ST. LOUIS

BY O. B. JOYFUL.
(From the Post-Dispatch of Nov. 12, 1929.)

In looking over our files for November, 1904, we find that Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States and President-elect, had accepted an invitation from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition to attend the great World's Fair then being held under its auspices, and that he had promised to bring with him and place on display the celebrated "Big Stick" which had made him internationally famous. This stick was the weapon which Mr. Roosevelt, who was a very gregarious party, used to flourish in the face of other nations, keeping them in a state of constant apprehension, and much curiosity was expressed by our people concerning what it looked like; consequently the advent of the President was awaited with considerable interest.

This morning Mayor Katter Aufschnitt, through his secretary, Finnan Haddie, issued an order suppressing the sale of all dime novels bearing such titles as "Fearless Fred, the Skye Raider; or the Fate of the Pirate Airship." The mayor believes that such literature is harmful to the minds of our young people and should not be tolerated. He believes that the perusal of such thrilling tales as these—too often founded on fact—is likely to lead young boys to run away from home (there have, in fact, been several recent cases of this kind) to follow the life of an airship pirate on the high seas of ether. The order will be rigidly enforced by Chief of Police Raussnitz Heim.

Willie Chuser, a misguided or misinformed youth from St. Charles, was fined $25 by Judge Sokum Goode this morning for sitting on the sidewalk. This is the first time there has been arrest of this kind in St. Louis for fifteen years.

In the humorous column of the Post-Dispatch of this date twenty-five years ago today in St. Louis we observe this little verse:

In the days of Edward Butler,
Where were politicians subtle?
Aw, g'wan!

We have no means of knowing, but we suppose this verse has reference to a celebrated statesman of that day, who, although a white man, was the leader of a great and powerful tribe of Indians known as the Repeaters, and who, it is said, laid in a fine large line of cutlery that year for the purpose of knifing certain candidates who were not to their liking.

Knicker: Your landlord.

"Yes," said he, letting her out another notch beyond the speed limit, "the automobile has come to stay."
Then the machine slowed down, gave a shudder or two, and a dry, rasping cough and stopped.
"You were right," said his guest a few hours later as they trudged wearily into town.—Houston Post.

The Game of Ringing the Canes.

One feature of the average county fair is the booth of the cane-ringing fakir. You pitch rings over a cane if you are fortunate and win the prize. The ring here is larger than the average. Cut it out, and by moving it among the canes, see how many you can embrace in the circle. Only the black heads of the canes are to be ringed and they must all clear the black part of the circle. A party can try this puzzle and the winner is the one who can ring the greatest number.

THE NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

Pleasant Reading.

Mr. William Fureber Payson's novel, "Debonnaire" (McClure, Phillips & Co., New York), is the story of a troubadour knight-errant in a new setting.

Louis le Debonnaire, its hero, otherwise Louis de Cadillac, a French noble of the Great Monarch's day, makes his bow to the reader as a captain of the regiment of Carignan-Sallieres, the band of young d'ardeville detached from the French army and sent to Canada to fight Indians when Canada was the New France of the virgin Western Hemisphere. He is a sort of beautiful and dashing Cyrano de Bergerac, deadly with the sword, and a dainty maker of lyric verse. He comes into view singing:

I am Louis le Debonnaire,
Captain of Carignan-Sallieres,
Singer of songs—a bit in all—
Lover of wit, and devil-may-care,
Lover of life—the world is fair,
So sings Louis le Debonnaire!

And from that moment his adventures are fast and furious, with a beautiful unknown cousin, whom he loves without ever having seen, beckoning him on to his doughtiest deeds. For, at a dinner given by the French Governor of Canada, this Louis le Debonnaire has made a wager, with lute over his shoulder and sword at thigh, that he will win his beautiful cousin and bring her back from New Amsterdam to Canada one year from that day, and you know then, of course, that he is bound to encounter all sorts of perils in consequence. Just what happens to him in his endeavor to make good his audacious boast constitutes the action of Mr. Payson's romance.

It would be more or less absurd to take such a story seriously, and, since the book is good reading of its kind, its unreality need not excite cavil. The characters met with are typical of the times in a shadowy sort of way, the gay and the divers and sundry types of a new gallant Frenchman, the stolid Dutchman, land. And we meet a very lovely young woman in the fair Irene de Cadillac and find ourselves keenly interested in her fortunes and in those of the saucy young Gallie gasconade who wears her colors without her knowledge or consent. The book is one to be taken up of a winter's evening and read in an hour—it isn't much more than a novelette in length—and then dismissed from thought like any other light entertainment. But these one-act novels, so to speak, are refreshing and grateful to the mind and fortify it, perhaps, for grappling with more serious enterprises thereafter. Mr. Payson has contributed quite a creditable dramatic sketch to the vaudeville olio of the literary stage.

Self Building.

The latest New Thought book is entitled "Self Building Through Common-Sense Methods." The writer, Corilla Banister, a southern woman who has evidently lived in New England and traveled far and wide, does not appear to be strictly a disciple of the New Thought leaders, but has, as she says, at the feet of Hindoo teachers as well, and in this book gives the result of her development for the benefit of those who may desire to advance along these lines. The author says that by the exercise of the precepts which she gives in this book she has raised herself from a condition of invalidism to a condition of perfect physical health, accompanied by an increase of mental and spiritual power that is enabling her to perform a remarkable work in showing others how to develop along the lines of being.

The system taught combines attention to food, bathing, gymnastics, vibration, concentration, meditation, breathing and other methods more or less familiar to the reader of New Thought and occult literature. It may be said that the teachings will be found very difficult to the busy man or woman, and better adapted to those who have plenty of leisure. But so much excellent advice is given in the several chapters, and so many examples of benefit derived from following it, that every reader will be helped in some degree. The author is very sure of her style is simple and pleasant. She addresses herself especially to women, and many of her suggestions cannot fail to prove helpful to young people. The book is published by Lee & Shepard. Price, $1.10.

An Intimate Picture of Gen. Lee.

"The Recollections and Letters of Gen. Robert E. Lee," just published by Doubleday, Page & Co., reveal intimate and personal side of the great Confederate general. In these letters Gen. Lee's whole attitude as a citizen of two republics shines in never before. They show that as loyal as he followed by his constituents, he was in what he believed was constitutional right and liberty, so did he take his modest sincere place in the reconstruction of his distracted country. They reveal him in no sense as "the unreconstructed rebel," but as one who resolutely accepted the inevitable. These letters were compiled by his son, Capt. Robert E. Lee, himself a central Confederate soldier, who has interspersed many new and significant incidents in the life of his distinguished father. The book covers the entire period of Gen. Lee's public activities, from the time he was an engineer in the United States army, following his graduation from West Point, to that October day in 1870, when, as president of Washington College in Lexington, Va., he died.

Rebecca

Kate Douglas Wiggin is beset by requests to write another "Rebecca" book, which will hint at a further chapter of Rebecca's history, but despite the thousand letters she has received urging her thereto, Mrs. Riggs professes reluctance to undertake the task. She says: "At the present moment I am inclined to say I shall never write another 'Rebecca' book, but never is a long, hard word." It would be difficult indeed to provide Rebecca with a maidenhood as captivating as her childhood.

Another Problem Novel

"Rebels of the New South" is the title of a novel by Walter Marion Raymond, which will shortly be issued by Charles H. Kerr & Co. of Chicago. Those who have received their impressions of Socialist views of the marriage question from caricatures like that of the Rev. Mr. Dixon will be surprised at the absolutely clean atmosphere of Mr. Raymond's work. Yet there is nothing conventional nor hypocritical about it. Neither is there any preaching; the author is no novice in fiction writing, and he understands his trade too well to let any sermon interfere with the movement of his story. The scene of the novel is set in Virginia, and the people in it are not imaginary products of a future civilization, live men and women of today. It is well worth reading, merely as a story, and it gives a fairly adequate idea of what some actual American Socialists are like. The book will be illustrated with eight full-page engravings from original drawings, and will be handsomely bound in cloth. The price will be one dollar. Ready early in November.

IS SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPHY GENUINE?

Remarkable Instances Cited of Unaccountable Appearances on Photographic Plates.

All who have a practical experience in photography know that to produce a bogus spirit photograph is a simple matter. Two individuals successively photographed on the same plate, double printing, muslin-draped busts, the skillful arrangement of a portrait behind a sitter, will produce phantasmal appearances when printed, as will also the lesser-known means of introducing a phosphorus tablet at the back of a plate in the dark slide, or of impressing the surface of a relief film. It is true that by such methods scoundrels have traded on the most sacred feelings of credulous dupes; but it is equally certain that under the strictest test conditions, imposed by shrewd and skeptical men who are also skilled photographers, unaccountable phantasmal appearances have appeared on negatives.

Some time ago an alleged spirit photograph was sent to F. W. H. Myers, taken in the presence of David Dugid, a workman in a bicycle factory, who was also a private medium. Mr. Myers suggested that another endeavor to obtain a so-called spirit photograph should be made under the most stringent conditions, and in the presence of a man well acquainted with photographic manipulations. Such was found in J. Trull Taylor, the author of a book on "The Optics of Photography and Photographic Lenses," and the editor of "A Manual of Photographic Chemistry."

Mr. Taylor agreed to make one of the investigators—who included a clergyman, a free-thinker, a medical man who was a member of two learned societies, and a couple of hard-headed Scotchmen—on the condition, as he states, "that I for the nonce would assume them all to be tricksters, and to guard against fraud, should use my own camera and unopened packages of dry plates purchased from dealers of repute, and that I should be excused from allowing a plate to go out of my own hand till after development; but that, as I treat them as under suspicion, so must they treat me, and that every act I perform must be in presence of two witnesses." These being accepted, he attended the seance, took a plate out of a fresh packet, put it in the camera, and exposed it by magnesium ribbon which he held, while he kept one eye on the camera, and the other on the medium, who sat quite passive and apparently unconcerned. Then taking the plate from the dark slide he developed it. The result was that between the camera and the sitter a female figure was developed, rather in a more pronounced form than that of the sitter. On asking the man what he had been thinking of during the time of the exposure, the answer was that he was wondering if he would be able to secure a seat in a smoking car that night.

This was the first of many successful experiments that under every conceivable test were made by Mr. Taylor. Some of the phantoms were in focus, others were not; some monopolized the greater portion of the plate, obliterating the sitter; many were as if cut out of a photograph by a can-opener and held up behind the sitter. "But," says Mr. Taylor, "not one of these figures which came out so strongly in the negative was visible in any form or shape to me during the time of exposure in the camera, and I vouch in the strongest manner for the fact that no one whatever had an opportunity of tampering with any plate anterior to its being placed in the dark slide or immediately preceding development."

CALL ONE OF THE MAN

SAILORS SEE MAN
"LOST AT SEA"

Jackies of Battleship Illinois Declare "Drowned" Steward Was Working in Navy Yard.

WANTED FOR AN ASSAULT

Jumped From Ship Ten Miles From Land During Cruise Through Adriatic.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Four bareheaded jackies of the battleship Illinois suddenly dashed down the gangplank of the ship lying at the Brooklyn navy yard and darted across the dock like hares.

"That's him! That's him! Stop him! They yelled to the crowd of workmen who were leaving for the day. The workmen looked and saw a man in overalls, hurdling across the yard, now and then casting a terrified glance over his shoulder at his pursuers.

Fully a hundred of the workmen joined the sailors in the chase. The fugitive escaped. The sailors swore it was R. C. Williams, the missing hospital steward of the Illinois. This Williams, they say, has reappeared, either in person or in double and is now working about the navy yards.

If he is alive, as the jackies may be, he is wanted for a murderous assault upon a corporal of marines of the battleship. It happened last summer, when the Illinois was cruising in the Adriatic. She was 15 miles from shore; yet, when cornered, the hospital steward took his chance of reaching shore by swimming and jumped overboard. A boat was put out for him, but as he was not found the officers of the ship reported to the navy department that he was drowned.

Since coming into port again the Illinois men say they have seen the man, and think his clever swimming saved his life. The fact that the man they saw yesterday ran when he saw them is proof enough for them that he is the missing steward.

LONELINESS OF YIP WAS HIS undoing

It Led Servant of Chinese Royalty to Hop Alley, Fan Tan and the Holdover.

THERE HE SPENT THE NIGHT

Master Finally Found Him, Scolded Him and Secured His Release.

Yip Klong, servant of Ou Shu Tchen, second secretary of the Chinese legation at Washington, fell from grace while in America and spent one night in the St. Louis holdover, among criminals and Chinese of lowly caste.

This was terrible ignominy, for Yip is the servant of royalty, and it is not his custom to associate with Chinese who inhabit such places as Hop alley.

But that is where he was captured by Immigration Inspector A. C. Ringway, and unceremoniously yanked to the Four Courts.

Yip came to St. Louis a few days ago with his master. In Washington it is his custom to associate only with servants of the legation, but in St. Louis it was different. There are no Chinese in St. Louis quite in the same caste with Yip. He became lonely and longed for the presence of his countrymen.

He strolled downtown, and how his little pointed eyes danced as he actually saw a Chinaman moving toward him. Profuse were the bows that Yip permitted himself to make, and soon he and the other Chinaman were the best of friends.

The St. Louis Celestial told about the game of fan tan which could be found in the dark, opium-smoked cellar of a house on Hop alley. He told of the pipes there. It all sounded good to the ears of lonely Yip.

His master could never know, he thought, and so down into the dark, ill-smelling cellar Yip accompanied his new-found friend. The smell was pleasant to the homesick Yip, and he settled himself to the enjoyment of a game of fan tan.

It was a sorry moment for Yip when he stooped to associate with those whom his master would declare were beneath him.

The players in the cellar were soon warned by noises above that danger was ahead, and before they could escape into the hiding places of the cellar the stairway form of an American appeared in the doorway. He took away with him poor Yip, too frightened to know where he was going, and with him went also Lee Ting Hui, due to him, and Lee Ting Hui.

All went to the jail, where neither chop-choy nor rice nor opium is on the regular bill of fare.

It was fully 24 hours later when Ou Shu Tchen, who had become greatly exercised over his servant's failure to appear to braid his queue and smooth out the wrinkles in his alien garment, found poor Yip in jail. Yip wept bitterly at the words of his master, who scolded him unmercifully for his associations. Then the master went to Immigration Inspector Dunn and procured the release of Yip.

All the Chinese were arrested for being in this country without proper entrance papers, and for being laborers in violation of the Chinese exclusion act. Their names will be heard by Commissioner Habbitt Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

WIRELESS MESSAGES SENT TO BALLOON

Successful Experiment in Communicating With Men Above Clouds Is Made.

The first successful demonstration of wireless telegraph communication between a station on the earth and men in the clouds has been given at the World's Fair. As told in late editions of Friday's Post-Dispatch, a balloon containing three men and a wireless telegraph instrument, remained in the air an hour and a half, during which time repeated messages were sent from the wireless station to the balloon.

The test is regarded by the officials of the De Forest Wireless Telegraph Co. as one of the most successful ever attempted, as it developed that the presence of clouds between the instruments will have no effect upon the messages. The balloon Friday afternoon going above the clouds and being at times completely out of sight of the operator in the wireless telegraph tower.

In the basket of the balloon, which left the aerodrome a few minutes after 3 o'clock, were A. W. McQueen, wireless operator, and V. S. Foreman, in the rigging above the basket sat Paul Knabenshue, owner of the balloon and a younger brother of A. Roy Knabenshue, who recently made two successful flights in Aerodrome T. S. Baldwin's airship, the California Arrow.

The balloon had scarcely left the earth when an operator in the De Forest tower, near the Fross building at the Fair, began sending messages. Two coils of copper wire, one fastened about the top of the balloon and one suspended from the bottom, caught the electric waves emanating from the sending tower, and carried them to the tuner and responding instrument in the basket of the balloon, from which they were read by Operator McQueen.

Messages were received in the balloon at altitudes varying from 1400 feet to 2100 feet.

When the balloon first rose it drifted toward the east. Later, a current of air carried it west at so great a height that it was not visible to those on the ground. It was at a short distance southwest of the Fair a cold current struck the balloon, condensing the gas rapidly and causing it to descend.

The landing was made at 4:30 o'clock on the wagon farm, two and a half miles southwest of the Fair. The aerodrome loaded the balloon on a wagon and returned to the aerodrome before 9 o'clock.

"OLD MAID" PRESIDENT IN HER NEWMADE HOME PRAISES MARRIED LIFE

Chief Actress in Spinster's Convention Laughs at Farce in Which She Figured and Tells How She Was Engaged All the Time.

MRS. J. A. PURCELL.

"My family moved to East St. Louis six years ago, but Johnny found the way across the bridge and we had planned to marry early in November.

"The Sociality girls decided to give an Old Maids' convention as a part of the entertainment which was given in October for the benefit of St. Patrick's Church. I was asked to be 'chief of maid,' but at the same time made ready to marry Johnny at the time we had agreed on."

The Old Maids' convention was the headliner of the concert given for St. Patrick's Church. Mrs. Purcell was the most quickly engaged figure in the assembly of the young maids, who for the nonce enacted the part of elderly ladies in the most fashionable gown, her long iron-gray curls and the shimmering smile she assumed earned plaudits.

A week later her engagement to John A. Purcell, a St. Louis fireman, was announced. They were married at St. Patrick's Church, Thursday afternoon. Their friends threw handfuls of rice, but the rice was the minor feature of the wedding. Friends sent a shower of presents, tables, chairs, clocks and silverware to aid the young couple in fitting out their new home.

It was while she was arranging these wedding gifts that Mrs. Purcell, president of the Old Maids' convention, declared real home-making was far preferable to most of the other amusements.

Mrs. Purcell's wedding was one of the largest ever held in St. Patrick's Church. The attendants were Theodore Jacoby and Miss Annie Brizzell. Rev. Father Charles Sweeney performed the ceremony, and the wedding march was sung by the Young Ladies' Sociality with Miss Mae Walsh at the organ. Miss Katherine sang the "Ave Maria," and the choir sang the "Power Song."

Johnny and I had planned our marriage before I agreed to act as an old maid in the church entertainment," she said.

"We had known each other since I lived almost next door to him on Caroline street years ago."

YOUR LIGHT RAYS TELL LIFE'S STORY

English Physician Says Every Man Is a Lamp and Colors Vary With Conduct.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Experiments numbering over 300, conducted over a term of three years, have formed the subject matter for a communication to a physician to a well-known medical journal to the effect that the rays emitted by the human body differ in color according to the character and temperament of the person. The following particulars are given by the writer:

"The rays emanating from a very passionate man radiate a deep red hue; one whose keynote in life is to be good and do good throws off pink rays; the ambitious man emits orange rays; the deep thinker, deep blue; the lover of art and refined surroundings yellow; an anxious, depressed person, gray."

"One who leads a low, debased life throws off brown rays; a devoted, self-sacrificing person, light blue; a good-meaning person, light blue; a progressive minded one, light green, and a physically or mentally ill one, dark green."

The doctor admits that his theory is apt to be received with incredulity, but it is strengthened by the fact that the color sense of the human race is reaching its present stage of development.

ALL OUT! THIS CAR ON FIRE!

Engines Twice Called Out to Save Trolley Coaches.

For the second time in 12 hours the fire department was called out Saturday morning to save a burning trolley car. The car, caught fire from a hotbox at Thirteenth and O'Fallon streets. The motor-man stopped it and he and the conductor attempted to extinguish the flames, but could not, and an alarm was sent in. The firemen put out the flames after the car had been partially filled with flames. The first street car fire was Friday evening at Vandeventer and Finney avenues. The wires of an eastbound Page avenue car became crossed in the motor box and set fire to the woodwork. The flames spread along the side of the car. The passengers, almost panic-stricken, rushed for the doors and some tried to climb out of the windows. The fire department was called out for this blaze, too.

Cadets of the Western Military Academy who have made several visits to the World's Fair during the summer will be seen again, Nov. 22, when they will give an exhibition drill at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The cadets are well drilled and their exhibitions during the summer always attracted large crowds. It has not been determined whether the cadets will be encamped at the World's Fair for a day or two, or whether they will come to St. Louis for one day only.

BALDWIN TAKES HIS AIRSHIP AWAY

Gets It Out of the Aerodrome and Starts It on Its Way to Los Angeles.

Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin's "California Arrow," the airship which made its first and only successful flight in America while at the World's Fair, was boxed up and carted out of the World's Fair Aerodrome Saturday morning, to fly the skies of the Ivory City no more, at least during the present World's Fair.

The crate was labeled "Los Angeles," and Capt. Baldwin says he will himself depart in a few days to his workshop in California, there to ponder over the machine which he will evolve a machine with a much greater carrying capacity and a much higher speed than the "Arrow."

A. Roy Knabenshue, who directed the aerial flights of the machine in its career of successful trips, Capt. Baldwin announced Saturday, will accompany him. Mr. Knabenshue will devote his time in the future to studying the mechanism of airships and the secrets of the air, and will make all experiments with Baldwin's new ship.

The dispute between Baldwin and Exposition officials over the removal of the airship from the aerodrome, told of in late editions of Friday's Post-Dispatch, were successfully adjusted.

Obstruction Placed in Front of Express Hurdled Aside—Man Seen by Crew.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—An attempt was made early today to wreck the north-bound Cape May express train on the West Jersey & Seashore railroad, near Woodbury, N. J.

A railroad tie was stood on end in the middle of the tracks and was braced so that it could not fall. The train was running at such a high speed that the tie was hurled from the track without damage to the train. The train crew saw a man disappear in the darkness just as the train crashed into the obstruction. A pay train of the division had preceded the express about 10 minutes. The obstruction was placed near the spot where Mrs. Caleb Pancoast was killed on Monday night by the same train.

REMARKABLE CHANGE IN MISSOURI VOTE

Folk and Roosevelt Are 45,528 Votes Apart—Change of 54,284 in Four Years.

The only open question left in Missouri election results in the matter of a few figures in the majorities, all of which are as clean cut as to be out of danger of change in the official count.

The official vote as unofficially gathered from every county shows a difference of 45,528 between the cast for President Roosevelt and the cast for Governor-elect Folk, the only Democrat to gain a majority. The majority for Roosevelt electors is 18,721, while that for Mr. Folk is 23,342.

Four years ago Bryan carried the state by a plurality of 8,112, showing a change of 9,609 on the national ticket.

Thomas L. Ruby, for lieutenant-governor, led the state ticket after Mr. Folk, but John C. McKinley, the Republican candidate, received a plurality of 518.

The official canvass of votes under the supervision of the governor is not expected to be announced for at least two weeks. None of the returns from the counties are opened until all are in and experience tells the officials it will require that much time to get all at hand.

The pluralists against Cook for secretary of state and Allen for auditor will run higher than that against Ruby, but have not been definitely ascertained.

PRESIDENT ASKS QUIET FAIR VISIT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock of St. Louis is authority for the statement that President Roosevelt prefers a strictly sight-seeing visit to the World's Fair and that he understands the arrangements for his day there will include neither handshaking or speechmaking. Mr. Roosevelt appreciates the highest of the Exposition and he is very anxious that he shall have an opportunity to see all that is possible.

St. Louis will likely have the honor of entertaining the President and vice-president-elect, as well as Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Fairbanks. A member of the cabinet states that none of the members of the official family will accompany the President on the trip, which was discussed at the meeting of the cabinet. There the President announced that he had invited Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks to join him on the trip to St. Louis, and the presumption is that Mrs. Roosevelt will accompany the President, and they will be joined at Indianapolis by the vice-president-elect and Mrs. Fairbanks on the way out. Just who else will be invited is not known.

Very likely Secretary Loeb and Mrs. Loeb, and possibly Mr. and Mrs. Cortelyou, might be guests of the President. Chairman Cortelyou has announced that he will take a rest of several weeks before returning to Washington, but he might make a trip of the kind with the President, a delightful recreation. To the President himself was left the decision as to who should make up the presidential party on the trip. The usual guard of secret service men will accompany him.

A meeting of the Louisiana Purchase government board has been called for Nov. 12 to be held at the Government building on the Exposition grounds in St. Louis. This date is one day prior to the visit of President Roosevelt, and it is probable that practically every member of the board will be present.

PRESIDENT ASKS QUIET FAIR VISIT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock of St. Louis is authority for the statement that President Roosevelt prefers a strictly sight-seeing visit to the World's Fair and that he understands the arrangements for his day there will include neither handshaking or speechmaking. Mr. Roosevelt appreciates the highest of the Exposition and he is very anxious that he shall have an opportunity to see all that is possible.

St. Louis will likely have the honor of entertaining the President and vice-president-elect, as well as Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Fairbanks. A member of the cabinet states that none of the members of the official family will accompany the President on the trip, which was discussed at the meeting of the cabinet. There the President announced that he had invited Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks to join him on the trip to St. Louis, and the presumption is that Mrs. Roosevelt will accompany the President, and they will be joined at Indianapolis by the vice-president-elect and Mrs. Fairbanks on the way out. Just who else will be invited is not known.

Very likely Secretary Loeb and Mrs. Loeb, and possibly Mr. and Mrs. Cortelyou, might be guests of the President. Chairman Cortelyou has announced that he will take a rest of several weeks before returning to Washington, but he might make a trip of the kind with the President, a delightful recreation. To the President himself was left the decision as to who should make up the presidential party on the trip. The usual guard of secret service men will accompany him.
